COVID-19 Regulation Tracker

DAN BOSCH, DAN GOLDBECK | APRIL 28, 2020

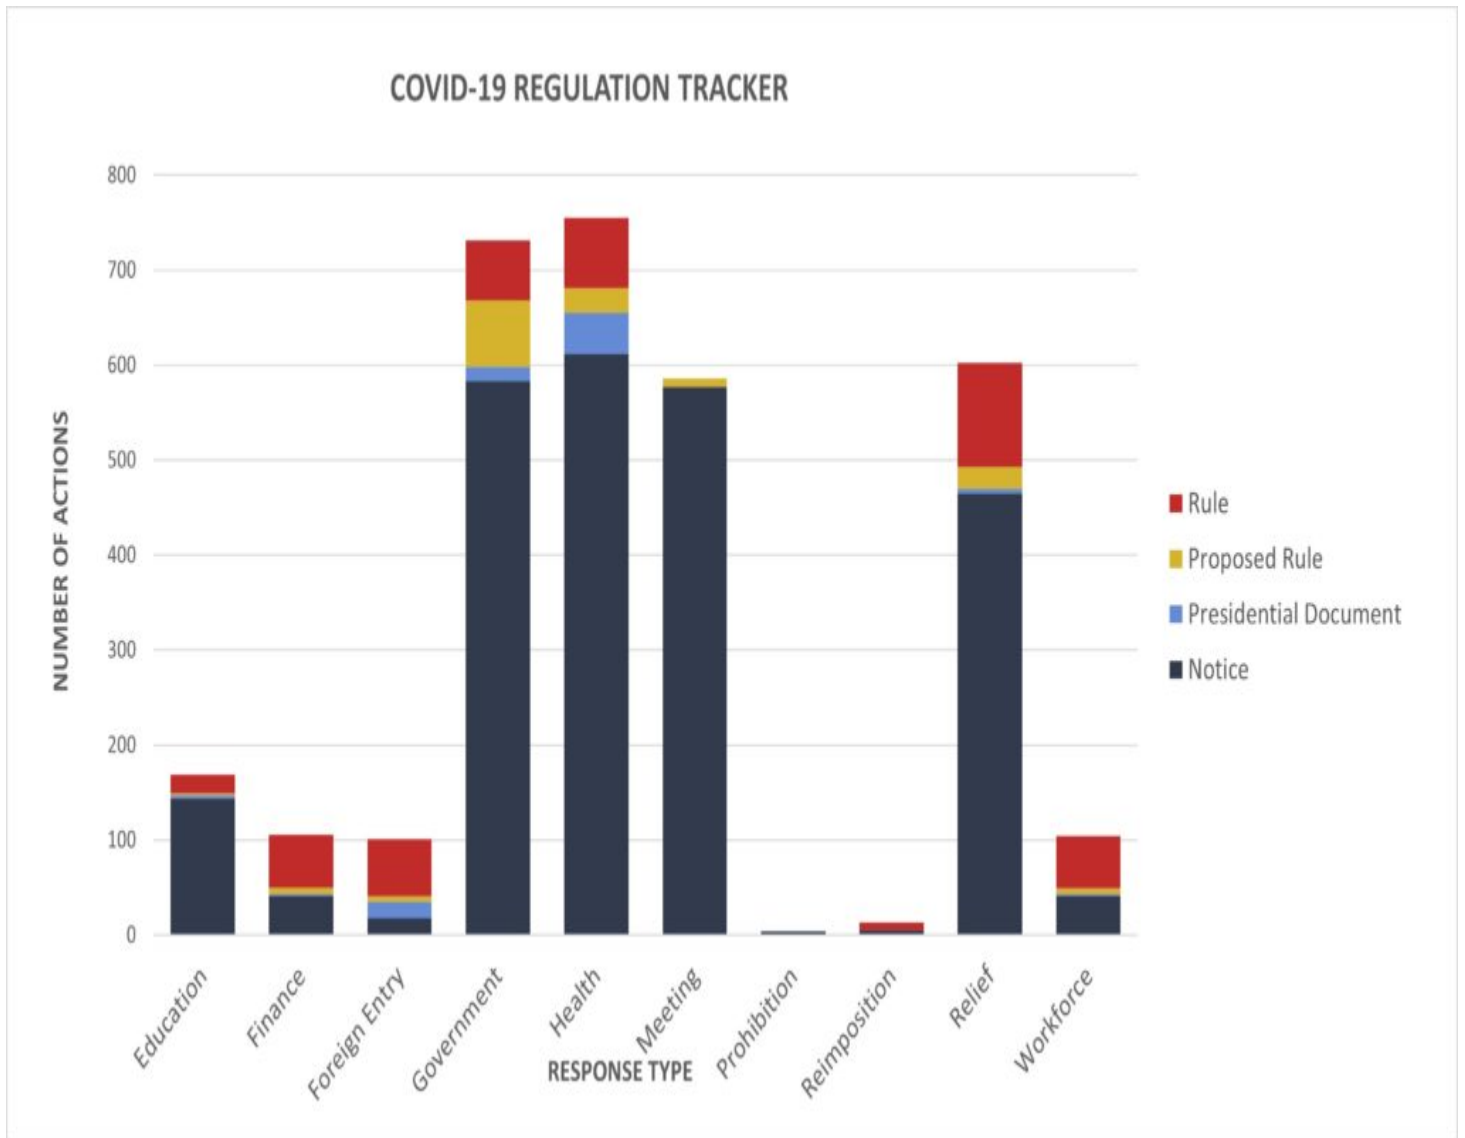

Note: The AAF COVID-19 Regulation Tracker stopped adding new actions after September 7, 2021.

The COVID-19 pandemic triggered a dramatic regulatory response by the federal government. This response has taken many forms, including emergency declarations, relief aimed at sustaining payrolls, prohibitions of activity, and temporary waivers of regulatory requirements.

The American Action Forum's COVID-19 Regulation Tracker compiles federal actions related to the coronavirus published in the Federal Register and assigns each a response type. These response types are:

- Education – Actions related to schools, colleges, universities, and federal education programs.
- Finance – Actions related to preservation of markets and liquidity.
- Foreign Entry – Actions related to entering, or reentering, the United States.
- Government – Actions related to the daily functioning of government, including comment extensions and disaster declarations.
- Health – Actions related to increasing medical capacity and preventing the spread of the coronavirus.
- Meeting – Actions notifying the public of meeting changes, cancellations, or other related activity.
- Prohibition – Actions specifically prohibiting a business activity.
- Relief – Actions granting regulatory relief, including temporary exemptions from certain regulatory requirements and permanent changes to the regulatory code.
- Reimposition – Actions reimposing regulatory requirements that were temporarily waived.
- Workforce – Actions related to implementing economic relief to workers, including the Paycheck Protection Program.
