

Press Release

AAF Finds Over $197 Billion of Regulatory Burdens Implemented in 2015

JANUARY 12, 2016

The American Action Forum (@AAF) released new research today examining all regulations issued last year by the Obama Administration. The AAF research finds 2015 to be the second costliest year under President Obama, with $197 billion in proposed and final regulatory costs including $99 billion in final rule burdens. The AAF research finds that in 2015, the Obama Administration issued $784 million worth of regulations each day the government was open.

This year, the administration could finalize an additional $98 billion in rules before the next president takes office.

Click here to read the research.

Click here to see the best and worst of regulation in 2015.

costs in billions unknown