

Research

Primer: Skilled Home Health Care

JULY 9, 2012

Skilled home health care is a critical component of the healthcare system, in which providers care for homebound patients with acute, chronic and rehabilitative needs. The importance of home health care is often overlooked and the use is commonly confused with unskilled custodial care.